Meet the Best of KBIS 2020 Judges

Garrison Hullinger, NKBA, is Principal at Garrison Hullinger Interior Design. GHID’s meteoric rise from its 2010 start in Garrison’s attic to a bustling studio in downtown Portland is a direct result of the talent and flexibility of the team he has assembled and nurtured over the years. Combined with his background in branding and retail business systems, Garrison’s commitment to client-centered design and deep understanding of color, form, and construction shape every project that GHID takes on – whether it’s a private home, a multi-family development, or a high-end hotel.

Shannon Ggem, NKBA, is the principal at Ggem Design Co. and a whole home remodel/full furnish specialist in Los Angeles specializing in bringing quality older homes up to date in flow, function and style for discerning clients. As a Sacramento resident, she admires the unique design history, art culture, and farm-to-form mission of the city. Ashlee and the Nar Design Group team are excited to influence contemporary home design in Sacramento and beyond.

Sarah Robertson, NKBA, understands the importance of being organized. Perhaps that’s why this NKBA kitchen design maven and founder of Studio Dearborn has made the mastery of storage an integral part of her design success. With an intense focus on the functional details of every kitchen, she blends clever storage seamlessly into precision millwork, resulting in tailored, elegant spaces that are fun to cook and live in. Industry accolades include NKBA Best Kitchen design, KBDN’s Top 50 Innovators, TIDA International Design winner, 2 KBDN design awards and 2 C&G Innovation Awards. Featured in House Beautiful, Washington Post, Apartment Therapy, Luxe, and HGTV Magazine among others, Robertson has an active blog and a loyal social media following.

Rebecca West, NKBA, IDS is an interior designer and founder of Seriously Happy Homes in Seattle. She believes that our homes can help us be healthier, happier, and more hopeful. She and her team donate a portion of her firm’s design project profits to support Rebuilding Together Seattle, a non-profit organization that provides free home repairs for low-income homeowners.

“Each year hundreds of amazing new kitchen and bath products are introduced at KBIS, but only seven are recognized as the Best of KBIS,” said Amy Hornby, Show Director, KBIS. “We are thrilled to be working again with a group of talented and well respected NKBA designers who have accepted the challenge to select the 2020 winners. I can’t wait to see which products they choose as ‘best of the best.’”
